CONTENT MARKETING IN THE UNITED KINGDOM

2014 Benchmarks, Budgets, and Trends
Greetings Marketers,

Welcome to our second annual report on the content marketing practices of UK marketers. In this report, we provide comparisons of for-profit UK, North American, and Australian marketers. One of the key findings is that UK marketers (48%) consider themselves to be more effective at content marketing* when compared with their North American (41%) and Australian (33%) peers.

Among the other findings:

▶ Only 42% of UK marketers say they have a documented content strategy; however, 10% of those answering this question were unsure. This is the highest rate of uncertainty we saw around this question when comparing responses across continents.

▶ 76% of UK marketers are producing more content than they did one year ago, compared with 72% of North American and 81% of Australian marketers.

▶ UK marketers (89%) use Twitter more often than their North American (84%) and Australian (79%) peers do; however, like those peers, they rate LinkedIn highest in terms of effectiveness.

▶ UK marketers allocate more of their total marketing budget (31%) to content marketing when compared with North American (29%) and Australian (27%) marketers.

UK marketers are fairly challenged in regard to producing enough content (46%) and producing engaging content (44%). However, they use more content marketing tactics on average than their peers across the globe, and they use those tactics more frequently. That—in addition to their confidence in their effectiveness—leads us to conclude that content marketing is alive and well in the UK.

On with the content marketing revolution!

Content Marketing in the UK: 2014 Benchmarks, Budgets, and Trends was produced by Content Marketing Institute in partnership with the Direct Marketing Association UK (DMA).

The fourth annual Content Marketing Survey, from which the results of this second annual UK report were generated, was mailed electronically to a sample of marketers using lists from Content Marketing Institute, MarketingProfs, Brightcove, Blackbaud, King Content, The Association for Data-driven Marketing & Advertising (ADMA), the Direct Marketing Association UK (DMA), Industry Week, and New Equipment Digest. A total of 4,397 recipients from around the globe—representing a full range of industries, functional areas, and company sizes—responded throughout July and August 2013.

Of those 4,397 respondents, 198 identified themselves as for-profit marketers in the UK (155 B2B and 43 B2C); 1,622 identified themselves as for-profit marketers in North America (1,315 B2B and 307 B2C); and 159 identified themselves as for-profit marketers in Australia (116 B2B and 43 B2C).

Content Marketing in the UK: 2014 Benchmarks, Budgets, and Trends reports primarily on the findings from the 198 UK respondents, and, in some cases, provides comparisons against the responses that the North American and Australian for-profit marketers provided.
