Greetings Marketers,

Welcome to the sixth annual Content Marketing in Australia: Benchmarks, Budgets, and Trends report.

One of the most striking findings was the increased percentage of Australian content marketers who have become more focused on building an audience (85%) compared with last year’s survey results (69%). This finding was not unique to Australia; the Content Marketing Institute team observed it among all groups of content marketers studied.

Building a subscriber base is a key content marketing goal. However, what you do with that list is equally as important. The quality of content you create (does it speak to your audience’s wants and needs?) … how efficiently you produce it … whether it’s credible … how/when/where you distribute it – these are just a handful of factors that impact overall content marketing success. And let us not forget the importance of a documented strategy and a strong commitment to the approach (see page 4 for a glimpse at commitment’s influence).

We wish you success with using content marketing to provide meaningful, long-term value for your audience – and business results for your organisation. If you need educational resources, please let us know.

Yours in content,

Lisa Murton Beets

*Chart term definitions: The “most committed” respondents are those who describe their organisation's commitment level to content marketing as extremely or very committed. The “somewhat committed” describe it as somewhat committed.

Base: Australian content marketers.

2018 Content Marketing Trends—Australia: Content Marketing Institute/ADMA
The larger the organisation, the more likely it is to have both a centralised content marketing group as well as individual teams throughout the organisation.

A higher percentage of respondents than last year reported their organisation is in the adolescent phase of content marketing (38% vs. 28%); fewer reported being in the young/first steps phase (32% vs. 38%) or the sophisticated/mature phase (28% vs. 35%).

Approximately three out of five respondents (59%) outsource at least one content marketing activity; conversely, 41% do not outsource any content marketing activities.

Content Marketing in Australia 2018: Benchmarks, Budgets, and Trends was produced by Content Marketing Institute in partnership with the Association for Data-driven Marketing and Advertising (ADMA) and sponsored by LinkedIn Marketing Solutions.

The eighth annual content marketing survey, from which the results of this report were generated, was mailed electronically to a sample of marketers using lists from Content Marketing Institute, ADMA, MarketingProfs, WTWH Media, and Technology for Marketing (TFM).

A total of 2,190 recipients from around the globe—representing a full range of industries, functional areas, and company sizes—responded to the survey during June and July 2017. This report presents the findings from the 120 respondents who indicated their organisation is for-profit in Australia.

Additional reports based on the annual survey are available at www.contentmarketinginstitute.com/research. Special thanks to MarketingProfs for their assistance with the annual survey and the B2B North America and B2C North America reports.

Note: The Australian content marketers referred to in the base lines and bullet points in this report are respondents who indicated their organisation uses content marketing.
