Welcome to our Manufacturing Content Marketing 2019—Benchmarks, Budgets, and Trends report. We surveyed content marketers worldwide about a range of content marketing topics including strategy, audience development, technology proficiency, and content types. This report presents the data from the marketers who work in manufacturing organizations.

The data suggest that manufacturers have a way to go with putting the audience’s informational needs before their own sales/promotional message. In addition, marketers in these organizations say they are uniquely challenged with creating content that appeals to multi-level roles within their target audience. Many are working to address these challenges, for example, by developing personas.

It’s an exciting time to be a content marketer working in a manufacturing environment; there is plenty to learn and much to achieve. Best wishes for a successful 2019!
KEY FINDINGS

Audience is not always being put front-and-center

While manufacturing companies certainly need to explain how their products or services work, 51% of respondents said they always/frequently prioritize their sales/promotional message over the audience’s informational needs while creating content for content marketing purposes.

Creating content that appeals to multi-level roles is a challenge, but resources are going toward content creation

Manufacturers face long sales cycles full of multiple decision makers, and our survey confirmed that creating content for multi-level roles is a top challenge for respondents (68%). Fifty-six percent of those who increased content marketing spending over the last 12 months did so on content creation.

66% expect to be using personas by the end of 2018

39% of respondents said they use personas for content marketing purposes, and another 27% said they planned to begin doing so in 2018, bringing the figure to an estimated 66% by the end of 2018. This brings manufacturers closer to their peers in other industries on this practice (for example, 73% of B2B North America content marketers we surveyed plan to be using personas in 2018*).

Those without a documented content marketing strategy miss out on benefits

Fewer than one in four (21%) respondents have a documented content marketing strategy; however, a broader base of B2B marketers who do have a written strategy report the top benefits as “aligns the team around common mission/goals” and “makes it easier to determine which types of content to develop”*.

An emphasis on social media

When asked which types of technologies they use to help manage their content marketing efforts, 81% of manufacturing marketers said social media publishing/analytics tools (their top answer). In addition, 70% said they increased their use of social media for content marketing purposes compared with one year ago.

SUCCESS, MATURITY & COMMITMENT
64% of manufacturing content marketers say their organization’s content marketing is much/somewhat more successful compared with one year ago.

Past CMI/MarketingProfs annual content marketing research has consistently identified LinkedIn, Facebook, YouTube, and Twitter as the top four social media platforms manufacturing marketers use for content marketing purposes.

Instead of inquiring this year about specific platforms, we asked if issues such as changes in social media algorithms and data privacy had led content marketers to decrease their use of social media. We found no signs of slowing down, with only 2% of manufacturing marketers reporting a decrease in use.

Manufacturing Content Marketing 2019—Benchmarks, Budgets, and Trends was produced by Content Marketing Institute and sponsored by IEEE GlobalSpec.

The ninth annual CMI/MarketingProfs content marketing survey, from which the results of this report were generated, was mailed electronically to a sample of marketers using lists from Content Marketing Institute, MarketingProfs, The Association for Data-driven Marketing & Advertising (ADMA), WTH Media, and UBM Technology Group.

A total of 1,947 recipients from around the globe—representing a full range of industries, functional areas, and company sizes—replied to the survey during June and July 2018. This report presents the findings from the 146 respondents who indicated their organization is for-profit manufacturing and has been using content marketing for at least one year. The majority of respondents were B2B manufacturers based in North America.

Additional reports based on the annual survey are available at www.contentmarketinginstitute.com/research. Special thanks to MarketingProfs for their assistance with the annual survey and the B2B North America and B2C North America reports.
